When cyclists are riding in future, should they purchase meet the Editor of the downtown sheet, or any portion of a Sub Editor of the half-way sheet, they will please remember that (the cyclist), should immediately get off the earth.

A little while ago that wonderful half-way sheet, which the street crossed the "Eight Bells" Company before it made its appearance in town. Then, after the performance had taken place, that knowledge it was not too bad, or something to that effect. It looks now, as if someone "lucky" Editor was trying to get in his licks on the cyclist of this city.

In a letter in the Ontario last night, signed by "Trump," the Police Magistrate is accused by the writer with starting the petition in favor of the Bicycle By-law.

As far as the INTELLIGENCER is concerned, "Trump" is not correct. Our worthy Magistrate did not influence this paper.

If the agitation and petition, started solely by this paper, is not a complete success as far as wheelmen are concerned, it will be surely bringing them good results in the end, and the large number of wheelmen in this city must be recognized and given better roads or a kinder path.

THURSDAY'S NAMES.
Rev. J. W. Burke, Rector St. Thomas' Church, Bridge st.
Wm. J. Enbury, Dundas st.
H. Carr, Victoria Ave.
F. M. Anderson, Crown Alley, Queen st.

It is fortunate for the wheel women and wheelmen of the city that they have the opposition of so prominent a blunderer as the Ontario. That journal says:

It is proposed to allow the use of the walks in rainy weather. When the sidewalks or pavements are slippery with rain it is dangerous to take them with the wheels, and the police officers at the Bridge st. would be in imminent danger from breaking. It is permitted only if the rates of police must not be surprised if the rates are considerably advanced.

As there are no place signs, wheelmen on the south side of Bridge st. east of Pinnacles st., which alone it is proposed to ask for, the absurdity of the Ontario's objection is self-apparent.

It is also fortunate that the hybrid twaddling sheet, which has demonstrated that a newspaper can for a time exist without brains, and is destitute of principle, is also on the side of the sidewalk. But, true to its characteristics, it waited to see how the aldermen proposed to receive the matter before expressing an opinion.

The senior blunderer accepts that the use of sidewalks is not permitted to bicyclists in large cities. What of that? Big cities have asphalted streets, which are much better for wheeling than wooden sidewalks, and their walks are crowded. Still, some large cities - Rochester, Buffalo and Syracuse, for instance - allow the use of the walks to the wheel people, and no deaths by the wheel have been heard of there.

Shall men and women who have to use the wheel in going to and from their daily occupations be forced to tramp through a sea of mud, while the sidewalks are unused?

There is but one way in which wheel users and their sympathizers can secure a reasonable modification of the present excessive restrictions, and that is by sending in their names to the INTELLIGENCER office.

Let them go - jump over the stones. They're only wheel people. What nobody owns.

The INTELLIGENCER is the only paper in this city that advocates the interests of the cyclist.

If that paralyzed freak of journalism known as the junior twaddler will let us know the name of any "very merchant" who signed the petition in favor of the bicycle getting amendments to the present by-law, "and is sorry for it," we will willingly strike his name from the list. If you don't wish to publish his name send the gentleman to us.

The senior blunderer makes a howl against the bicyclist getting any concessions, and the junior twaddler follows suit. Better arguments, start a departmental printing office and general store combined; get all the Government pay you can and divide it.

As far as the senior is concerned, the dislike to any bicycle amendments originates in the mind of one individual, and that person usually occupies a chair in the downtown editorial room.

Not one cyclist out of ten in this city would ever dream of wishing to use a sidewalk if the roads were in fit condition to wheel on. As it is, they only want the use of certain walks of certain streets, during light mud in rainy and rainy to-day.

The larger number of the streets to-day are neither fit for man, wheel, or beast.

Both the down town papers carry "no amendments to the present bicycle by-law," yet parties employed on all three papers consider that "fearful" petition.

The cry of all cyclists is: "Oh! give us decent roads and a little bit of plank in muddy weather."

Strange as it may appear, several well-known citizens who are well up in years, and who pay taxes (and do not ride bikes), signed that petition. These gentlemen think that "there are others" besides themselves.

who possessed a theological mind, pointed out to Andrew Clark, San Gallows had the penny, San Gallows the shilling, and Andrew Clark had reason to congratulate himself that he had not received the shilling. So it all for the best, and Andrew, while not doubting that he had had something like this in church, had not then been in the situation.

Then San Gallows went to ring the bell again. When they came down there was not a soul about the playgrounds. From the house he heard the long wailing cry and for up the Day Road he could hear the wailing cry. He went to the door, and came sliding down the house with great haste.

Mary, I have a fault to find (the wailing cry).

Mary, I have a fault to find, a palace on her link chain. She had loved him for three weeks, only separated from another by some intervening month.

"O, how could you?" said Mary, "I don't know," he groined. "I don't know," Mary?

He looked at her affectionately, and she looked at him lovingly. They stood hand in hand, and looking for extended plans in his, the wailing cry faded away.

NOT PLAIN SAILING.

It has not taken long to convince the Liberal leaders that they are not as they proclaimed when they were in opposition and criticizing the N. P.—billionaire statesman who could, almost without the necessity of exerting their gigantic influence, cause a tariff to sail. The task they have learned, was not so easy as they declared. After many days spent in rambling over the country taking counsel with manufacturers, merchants and farmers, and many weary weeks passed in considering the subject they prevented the result of their labors to Parliament in the form of a compound made up of three-fourths N. P., and one-fourth sugar, intended to be the public enemy, and a blundering bonus "loyalty" clause, which is likely to prove a great damage to Canada, and of no advantage to the mother country.

That we do not overstate the case is apparent from the comments of the commercial and independent press, and the chief officers of the Patrons of Industry and their newspaper organ, and by the crowds of leading manufacturers who have thronged to Ottawa in the hope of inducing indifferent treatment of their industries, several of which are threatened with ruin by senseless alterations in the tariff.

Some even of the Liberal newspapers have fallen in the condemnation of the "loyalty" tariff, which is all but unanimous outside of the ranks of the Government supporters. For instance, the Sinclair Reformer—a well-known Liberal journal—

In our opinion it is the greatest "right about face" in Canadian political history. It differs from the former "armaguettes" made by Tory Finance Ministers, and it is the only one that is not a mere "right about face" in the "loyalty" tariff, which they ever go into operation.

The Mitchell Recorder—a stalwart Liberal—has also found the dose too much, and to swallow without protest, as in the course of a long and strong article it remarks:

Now that the tariff is really done, and a thing is looked at, it would remind one of the Irishman's story of the man who was running a mile to make it to make it. He had made it, and he was running a mile to make it. He had made it, and he was running a mile to make it.

However, we were not looking for, or expecting so much for, a tariff that would be a real tariff, as we were for a tariff that would be a real tariff, as we were for a tariff that would be a real tariff.

"NO BETTER TERMS."

We in a former issue called attention to the editorial article of the Globe showing that the subject of such importance as to justify a further reference to it. The text is a good one based upon what the leading Liberal journal designed to say, "The Globe's position of a 'raid' of Provincial Premiers on the Federal Treasury" by the Conservative press. It then adds that this "diabolical prediction" is "accompanied by a story that the Premier and his colleagues were working together to put the Laurier Government in power on the understanding that they were to be rewarded by 'better terms' for the provinces all round." And then it coolly adds, "The Globe is aware of any such understanding and 'would certainly not give it the slightest countenance.'"

Well, it is, that some writers have conventionally short memories. Has the Globe so soon forgotten the readiness with which the provincial Premiers obeyed the summons of the late Mr. Mercer to file an appearance in Quebec to decide upon the best mode of making the Dominion Treasury for large annual subsidies? Has it forgotten that at that conference the proposition to make that "raid" was approved, and that Ontario was a party to it and, what is of equal importance, the Conservatives of the Province particularly of Ontario, for organizing the said raid? On the contrary, it supported the scheme. Has it also forgotten the pledge given by Mr. Laurier during the election of 1894, that if returned to power he would carry out the Quebec programme for a "raid" upon the "Dominion Treasury" for larger subsidies to the provinces? If not, what new light has dawned upon the mental condition of the Dominion press?

Connect these facts with the appearance of nearly all the Grit Premiers of the Dominion in Ottawa at the present moment, and it is any wonder that the Conservative press should indicate what their intentions are, and that the light of the past, foreboding what may be expected.

Not only may we look forward to that "raid" being made, but also to a demand by the Manitoba Premier for over a million of dollars to cover a supposed claim that that Province has in consideration of its surrender on the school question. Then we have, in addition, only a million dollars demanded by the Bridge Company in Quebec, which is one of the members of the Government in a director.

In addition to these modest demands, we shall have, we doubt not, a midnight sortie upon the Treasury for no small sum to buy up the Dominion Counties Railway under the pretence of making the western terminus of the Intercolonial Railway at Montreal, but in reality to recoup those who own the road for services rendered. Time will develop how.

It is gratifying, however, notwithstanding, the signs on the political horizon, to learn from the Globe that it will "certainly not give it (the raid) the slightest countenance." How far this promise can be relied upon to cover a supposed claim that that Province has in consideration of its surrender on the school question. Then we have, in addition, only a million dollars demanded by the Bridge Company in Quebec, which is one of the members of the Government in a director.

channel for Canadian trade; and a Canadian Province proposed to expend over three millions of dollars to build a railway which, if executed at all, will defeat the national purpose of the main line.

Swallowing Ties.

If the Globe was arguing the merits of the proposed railway between Winnipeg and the Atlantic, it would have supported the proposed on the ground that trade should be allowed to move in natural channels, independently of political barriers. Today, however, it comminates the theory that a nation "in considering the desirability of a railway from Winnipeg to the Atlantic" should be guided by "geography." The form of political geography, says the Globe, "is not the road as that of the physical geography of the country, national sentiment and national prejudices must be reckoned with." "Canada is forced to seek trade within her own borders or with countries more remote than the United States."

"Good Politics," but a Broken Bridge.

But the publicists has not yet been carried by the people and Mr. Laurier should be able to lead them. After all, perhaps it is just as well that he warned the people at the close of the campaign that they would have to do it. Such a course is good politics.

It is Still in View.

The Tory papers are having a great deal of fun just now with the Liberals who, when in opposition, promised to give the last vestige of protection. There is a great deal of the last vestige still in view.

An Infallible Finance Minister.

And there's nothing the matter with Mr. Fildes' new tariff. True, he has put back the duty on mining supplies, but he has also put back the duty on the old N.P. But there is not a Grit in the country that will not be glad to see the tariff of Mr. Fildes in order to endorse Tariff No. 2.

Next to the inactivity and inaction of the men in power, the most notable feature of the present situation is the readiness with which the Grits press back up or go forward at the heels of their political opponents.
